Dear friends at Shirdi SaiBaba Mandir,

After experiencing Minnesota winters year after year, it can be easy to take for granted the value of a good, thick coat. Yet you, our friends at Shirdi SaiBaba Prayer Center, have not. You know just how much that layer of protection means for a child waiting for the bus, walking home from school, or even living in a poorly insulated house. And because of you, more children will be warm this winter. Because of you, hardworking parents struggling to make ends meet don't have to decide between a winter coat for their son or daughter and a meal on the table.

This year, we have 2,000 more coats to give away than last year, and I'm so thankful. Without all of you, that would not be possible. Knowing how you have helped these families warms my heart, and I hope it warms yours, as well.

Truly, your dedication to love, to peace, and to the betterment of human lives shines through your actions. We are humbled to count you as friends. Most of all, thank you for helping us reach out with love and warmth to our youngest neighbors.

Blessings,

Major Jeff L. Strickler
Twin Cities Commander
